

Talis Tisenkopfs (Dr.sc.soc., prof.) is a director of Baltic Studies Centre and director of PhD programme in sociology at University of Latvia. His research focuses on knowledge and innovation processes in agriculture and rural development, sustainable food systems and post-socialist transformation of agriculture and rural areas. Member of the COST Scientific Committee (2015–2021) and former vice-president of the European Society for Rural Sociology (2015-2017). The Latvian team leader of many EU projects, including DESIRA, AgriLink, ROBUST, PLAID, SALSA, SUFISA, TRANSMANGO and other. Member of the Expert Committee in Humanities and Social Sciences of the Latvian Council of Science (2013–2018). Supervisor of PhD students, post-doctoral researchers and Marie Skłodowska-Curie early career researchers.